GEORGIA.

Milledgeville, May 13.

Of the settled and inveterate hostility of the Florida Indians against the citizens of this state, there is daily confirmation. In reply to a late communication on this subject, from the executive of Georgia, Gen. Gaines observes, that although the principal part of the force under his command has been particularly designated, for the present, to the section of the country where he is, (the eastern frontier of the Mississippi territory) he anticipates the early receipt of an order to check the depredations of the Savages, and effectually subdue them. Should it be necessary to pursue them to their towns, a requisition will be made on this state for two battalions of infantry, to co-operate with the regular troops. Accompanying the letter of General Gaines, was one from a British agent, who doubtless possesses the talent, if not the inclination, to foment a spirit of discord among the Indians that will tend to their destruction. The following is an extract—it speaks for itself:—

A Arbuthnot to the commanding officer at Fort Gaines.

"Okolome River, 3d March, 1817.

"The head chiefs request that I will inquire of you, why American settlers are descending the Chatebauchie, driving the poor Indian from his habitation, and taking possession of his home and his cultivated fields.

"Without authority, I can claim nothing of you; but a humane and philanthropic principle guiding me, I hope the same will influence you—and if such is really the case, and that the line marked out by the treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States respecting the Indian nations, has been infringed by any of the citizens of the latter, that you will represent to them their improper conduct, and prevent its continuance.

"I have, in my possession, a letter received from the governor of New-Providence addressed to him by his Britannic majesty's chief secretary of state, informing of the orders given to the British ambassador at Washington, to watch over the interests of the Indian nations, and see that their rights are faithfully attended to and protected agreeably to the treaty of peace made between the British and the Americans.

"I am in hopes that, ere this, there is arrived at New-Providence, a person from Great Britain, with authority to act as agent for the Indian nations, and if so, it will devolve on him to see that the boundary lines, as marked out by the treaty, are not infringed.

FISHERIES. We learn, with no small regret, that the passage of the steam boats up and down the Potomac, has seriously retarded the progress of the fish in that river; and that, since their establishment, the fisheries have been much more unproductive than formerly. If this be a fact well established, there ought to be no hesitation in putting a stop to the evil, by prohibiting the passage of these boats, during the fishing season. The advantages resulting from the fisheries on the Potomac to the inhabitants of the district, Virginia, and Maryland, are incalculable. Thousands are thus furnished with provisions at a small expense and at a season of great scarcity and want. Those who can scarcely procure any other food, are thus chiefly supplied with the means of subsistence, and are enabled to keep themselves above the miseries of want, while the farmer and planter, even at the distance of seventy, eighty, and of a hundred miles from this valuable river, are furnished with a cheap and wholesome food for their families and slaves. What comparison, then, can exist between these immense advantages and those, if any, resulting from the passage of the steam boats. The suspension of these boats, during the fishing season, would be but a temporary inconvenience at most, while their continuation, if they have the effect suggested, will operate to the incalculable detriment of thousands.

SOUTH AMERICAN NEWS.

Extract of a letter from the Island of Trinidad, to a gentleman in N. York, dated the 14th of last month.

The affairs of Venezuela are every day assuming a better aspect. By the official communication of the patriotic general Peaz, who commands in Barinas, to Gen. Bolivar, dated the 28th of February, we have seen that on the 18th of the same month, the Royal Army, headed by Morillo, 1000 infantry and 800 cavalry strong, was attacked by the republican forces, commanded by Gen. Peaz, composed of 1300 cavalry. The cavalry of the royalists were completely routed and the infantry were obliged to form in a solid column in order to secure its retreat to the mountains of Apure; from thence they continued their retreat to the banks of the river San Fernando de Apure and Apurito, without the fear of being pursued, as the patriotic force in that part was altogether cavalry. The royal army lost in this engagement 300 horses, three drums, a quantity of ammunition, many muskets and carabines, and an immense number of lances, many prisoners, and some of the baggage of the staff. The prisoners say that this was all the forces Morillo took from New Grenada. The particular situation of the patriot army, and the resources in its power, seems to promise complete success to the patriotic cause.

REMEDY FOR CANCERS.

From the Middlesex, (Mass.) Gazette.

Dracut, April 9.

SIR—Considering it a duty incumbent upon each individual of society, to do all in his power to promote the health, prosperity and happiness of all his fellow citizens, I will state to you the commencement, progress and cure of a most distressing disease, which has occurred in my own family. If you think it worthy of a place in your paper, I have no objection to its being made publick; and it will afford me great consolation to learn, that the application which wrought the cure, has had the same efficacious operation upon others in similar circumstances.

About seven years since, my wife was seized with a cancer on her ankle, which increased with considerable rapidity, and was attended with pain; it continued sorely to affect her for nine months, during which time no pains were spared to obtain the best advice from those well versed in medicine and surgery. It was twice attempted to eradicate it by the application of vegetable causticks; and many other applications were unsuccessfully made. The limb became weak, and at times, much swollen. She had in a measure lost her appetite, and her whole system seemed on the decline. The sore was deep and broad. In this situation we commenced the application which produced the cure. The principal ingredient is an ever-green plant, which is to be found in all the northern states, in woodlands which produce a mixture of oak and pine timber. It is by different people called ever bitter-sweet, winter green, rheumatish plant, &c; the botanical name of the plant is pyrola. We made a strong decoction, by boiling the pyrola in pure water, placed in a vessel containing considerable quantity of pulverized roll sulphur, and poured the decoction upon it, boiling hot. Mrs. Varnum took a small quantity of the decoction, internally, two or three times in a day; bathed the defective part and parts adjacent to it several times in a day, and kept a cloth wet with it constantly on the ankle. She took about an ounce of common medicinal salts, every second day: the decoction was renewed as occasion required. We commenced this system of operation about the middle of April, 1815, and pursued it with unremitting care and attention, without variation. In a very few days from the commencement of the operation, the patient began to realize the beneficial effects of it: her appetite was restored; her pain was gradually eradicated; she rapidly gained strength, both in body and limb; so that in less than six weeks the defective ankle was entirely healed and sound, and her health and strength completely restored. It is now almost two years since this apparent cure was effected; and we have the greatest consolation of learning from her, that she has not felt a single twinge of the disorder since that period; we do therefore confidently hope, it will never return.

Mrs. Varnum now enjoys remarkable good health, for a person of her age.—Some people may object to making a thorough experiment, in cases similar to Mrs. Varnum's, on account of the simplicity and novelty of the prescription. But however simple and novel it may appear, and however inefficient it may prove with others, Mrs. Varnum and myself, with our family, have abundant reason to rejoice and bless the Supreme Arbiter of Events, for the wonderful effect which through the beneficence of Divine Providence, it has had in her case. And I am sanguine in the belief, that if early and undeviating experiments of the kind be made, they will prove efficacious in most, if not all cancer cases.

I am sir, with respect,
your obedient servant,
J. B. VARNUM.

PARIS, April 24—The Journals of London say and those of Paris have repeated it, that the President of the United States, Mr. Monroe had been Ambassador in France, that he had lost a leg in the war of independence, that he is tall, with a very manly countenance, and that his whole exterior and his manners are full of dignity.

Mr. Monroe possesses the noblest qualities of the heart, but he never lost a leg in the army; it is true he was Minister during the French Revolution; but the other traits of the picture, wooden leg, great height, masculine face, air of dignity, etc. belonged to Mr. Governour Morris, who was Minister of the United States nominated by the celebrated Washington to the Court of Louis XIV. whom he sought to defend with all the powers of his eloquence, in offering to his barbarous Judges on the part of his government, to receive the father and the sovereign of the French in the territory of the U. S. After the assassination of that unfortunate monarch, M. Morris decided upon returning to his country, where he enjoyed until his death the esteem of the Americans. He always preserved the most tender attachment for France and for all true Frenchmen, and rendered many services to these last on their emigration, from the horrors of our Revolution.

A serious revolution is stated to have been organized in Spain, which was to have broken out at Barcelona on the 4th of April. It was headed by the celebrated generals Lacy and Milan, and combined for the purpose of re-establishing the Cortes and Constitution. The plan was however discovered before it was carried into effect, and 18 officers of rank, and a great number of persons of distinction have been arrested. In other parts of the kingdom numerous arrests were daily made on this account.

LONDON, April 21.

Love Manoeuvres.—The circumstances of a late elopement are thus related: The enterprising lover, it seems, had ordered a chaise and four at the hotel, with strict directions to drive to his door at an appointed moment, and this order was punctually obeyed. On the arrival of the chaise the post-boys were ordered to drive off furiously to the South, with the empty carriage, while the lovers, by appointment, met in a lane about a mile distant from the town, and took their seats unobserved, in another chaise and four which was in waiting for them and which, on receiving its happy inmates drove off with equal rapidity to the North. In the mean time the alarm was given, and the pursuit became warm; but it was after the empty carriage, and the real tract of the fugitives was scarcely ascertained before the smith of Creton had forged another link to the indissoluble chain.

MIDDLETOWN, (Con.) May 22.

A queer Epitaph!—On a tomb stone in Lyme, there was, a few years since, and perhaps is at this time, the following epitaph, said to be written by the person for whom it was inscribed:

"A deacon, aged 58—58,
On earth no more is sarvin,
He for a crown no longer wates,
Lyme's Captain, Renald Marvin."

Tradition says that the above captain Marvin, when young, courted one Betty Lee, a handsome hearty lass, whose father was violently opposed to the match. Every probable measure was taken to molify the old gentleman, but all in vain. The young folks were as obstinate as the old one, and determined to have their own way. As in those good old times none could be matrimonially fettered without a previous manifesto, either from the mouth of the minister, or nailed on the door of the meeting-house; they made choice of the latter method, and Renald wrote the following stanza, which was nailed as aforesaid:

"Renald Marvin, Betsey Lee,
Do both intend to marry;
And though her dad opposed be,
No longer can they tarry."

Tradition further says, that the poetical abilities thus displayed, had such an effect on dad, that he shortly after consented that Renald and Betty should become one flesh.

Valuable Real estate for Sale.

PURSUANT to the last Will and Testament of the late Col. RICHARD BROWN, deceased I NOW OFFER FOR SALE.

The Farm on which he resided,

On the Ohio River, in Holliday's Cove, in Brook County, Virginia.

This Estate consists of about 700 Acres of Land, 250 of which is a rich Island, the remainder principally second bottom and upland; that part of the upland which is not tillable, is covered with timber suitable for furnishing the Island and tillable part with fencing and building timber. There is between 150 and 200 acres cleared and under cultivation, a suitable proportion of which in good meadow land. The buildings consist in two log dwelling houses and a log barn with under story of stone. It is well supplied with very fine springs of good water.

The situation of this property on the Ohio River, five miles from the flourishing Town of Steubenville, and in the neighbourhood of several Merchant Mills, Iron Works, &c. renders it a desirable object to a person who would wish to farm extensively, as he would probably at all times find a good market at his door for the produce of his farm. A part of the purchase will be required in hand, and for the remainder a reasonable credit will be given.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1817.

THE CASE STATED.

The rival candidates for the office of Governor are both so strongly recommend- d by their respective friends, and appear o possess such equal claims, that it is ifficult to decide between them, and the ood democrats are pretty much in the ame situation as the ass between the two acks of hay. Heister is fond of sour rout, and as he thereby shews his German escent and his tenacious adherence to the ood old customs of his forefathers, every honest Dutchman must vote for him.—Findlay loves apple toddy, which being omposed, like his party, of various ma- erials, is a typical proof of his possessing he true jacobinical principles of levelling emocracy. Heister has been near twenty ears in congress, yet he has never been onvicted or even suspected of having ade a speech—vir sapit qui pauca loqui- ur—ergo, Mr. Heister is a wise man and ught to be Governor. Findlay under- tands the theory and practice of exchange, nd as a change is necessary, therefore Mr. Findlay is the very man to effect it, nd ought to be Governor. Heister is upported by Duane, by whose almanac it ppears to be high time there should be a otation in office—and certainly Colonel Duane unde stands marking time. Find- ay is the darling of John Binns, who is or was) aid-de-camp to our present en- ightened chief magistrate, and whose chi- alric spirit induces him to wish for a con- inuance in that honourable post. Heister ets up for reform—and Heaven knows e want it,—but Findlay holds the purse trings of the commonwealth, and is pos- essed of "all appliances and means to oot." Go on gentlemen, and the "devil ake the hindmost."

The Indians in the neighbourhood of rairie du Chien and Debake's mines (says e St. Louis Gazette) appear very sul- y and indicate a desire to foment new ifficulties.

It is said that the Winnabago and Sac iefs have been lately at the British gar- son at Amhurstburg, and returned load- with presents.

The Kansas and Ottos have been at war me time. On the last of March, small r parties were sent from each of their ns to surprise and attack each other.— e Kansas happened to fall into the trace the Ottos on their march to attack the nsa villages. On the 2d of April they me up with the Ottos and defeated them th the loss of one of their warriors bad- wounded. They took four Otto scalps d a considerable quantity of arms and rses.

tract of a letter from Dr. Wm. Tur- ner to Maj. Wm. Oliver of Cincinnati, dated

"Fort Wayne, 19*th May*, 1817.

"An express from Chicago has this mo- nt arrived. Major Jouett writes me, t there is a party of Winnebagoes near icago, in a hostile attitude, determined revenge on that place, the death of their ations during the late war, in the sav- e form—blood for blood. He also states t it has occasioned considerable alarm mongst the citizens, he has despatched a rty of friendly Indians to Fox river to scertain the fact."

LATE FROM THE BRAZILS.

The brig Eugene, of Baltimore, arrived t Havanna on the 15th inst. in a short passage from Pernambucco, brought infor- mation that the whole coast of Brazil was a state of Revolution—and there was ot the least doubt that an independent go- ernment would be established, to the to- al exclusion of the Portuguese authority.

Intelligence is received at Norfolk, via ew Orleans, that the Patriot General Mi- a, having sailed with a considerable ex- edition from Galveston, had arrived off empico, which place he intended to at- ack. He was well provided with cannon, mmunition, and had effected a landing in he vicinity of the town without any oppo- ition. He had fortified a position which ould afford a safe harbor and protection o his shipping, and cover his retreat and e-embarkation if he should be unsuccess- l, of which however, there was no appre- ension as his means were considered to be lly adequate to the reduction and occu- ancy of the place.

GOVERNOR SNYDER.

"Can such things be,
And overcome us like a summer cloud
Without our special wonder?"

In the local politics of Pennsylvania, hether one democrat or another demo- rat mounts the chair of state, is to a feder- ist abroad a matter of very little impor- nce. But there are sometimes such portant facts disclosed in the course such investigations, as deserve to be remembered and recorded elsewhere. Not to deal in general inuendos and charges, John Binns is in the last Aurora charged with interfering in the governor's appointment to the board of health. It is stated that the deputy secretary of state received directions from governor Snyder, to make out the commissions to the several individuals whom he had appointed members of that board. That the governor had departed to Selins' Grove, his residence we presume, under the expectation that these commissions would be regularly made out, and transmitted to the members of that board. That in the mean time an express arrived from John Binns, with orders to the deputy secretary of state, to delay making out these commissions until further orders should be received from his excellency the governor of the state. That these directions from John Binns were punctually attended to by the secretary, and that he did afterwards receive orders from the governor to make out commissions, to other individuals than those originally named.—Now here are regular specific charges advanced, capable of disproof or of denial, which if true, serve to shew in the clearest light that John Binns, and not Symon Snyder, is the governor of Pennsylvania: that Symon Snyder only governs according to the advice and direction of John Binns. This has been often asserted and with much confidence; but we doubt whether such a train of facts have ever been laid before the public before, which go so fully and so completely to establish this point. Although we may often discover the play of legislative puppets, it seldom indeed happens, that we see who pulls the wires. If these facts are true, here is the governor of the state of Pennsylvania, a slave to the editor of a newspaper—he probably thought that he might, as a matter of special grace and favor, in the decline of his day, venture to make a few appointments, without daring to consult his master. But it seems that his excellency reckoned without his host—he is immediately brought back by his real master to a proper sense of his duty, and commanded not to dream of interfering with the rights and prerogatives of John Binns.—Balt. Tel.

Batavia, (New York) May 24.

MOST EXTRAORDINARY!!

One of the most singular circumstances, recorded in the history of accidents, occurred in the town of Middlebury, in this county, on the 16th inst. and exhibits, in the hero of misfortune, a mind excelling in the cool, deliberate and determined virtues. The subject is as follows: Artemus Shattuck, on that day, in a piece of chopping that he was clearing, fell a tree across a stump, in which situation it remained nearly balanced, the top, however, buoyed up the butt; while thus suspended, he undertook to cut the tree in two, near the stump upon which it was lodged, and while standing upon it for that purpose, he cut so much more upon the upper than the under part of the tree, that the weight of the butt caused it to split, and at the instant of the greatest vibration or separation of the severed parts, his foot slipt into the cavity of the opening timber, and remained as firmly fixed as in a vice:—he fell immediately backwards, in which fall he lost his axe, but soon recovered a position that enabled him to hold upon the tree by one hand, with the other he drew out his pocket knife and cut a limb with a hook attached to it, with the intention of drawing up the axe and cutting the tree to liberate his foot, but soon found his efforts fruitless. He next tried to break his leg, as that would have enabled him to turn his body in a position to sit upon the tree and wait the lingering hour of assistance; but his position prevented even the gratification of this harsh relief. Finding his strength failing fast, and no prospect of timely relief, (as no human assistance was within three quarters of a mile) he adopted the only alternative that remained of saving himself from the hard and horrible death of expiring while suspended in the air, with his head down and his feet up.—With his penknife he deliberately severed his foot from his leg at the ancle joint, and on his hands and knees bent his course for home. In this posture he crawled a full half mile before his calls for assistance were heard, and twice had to deviate several rods from a direct line to a rivulet to quench his raging thirst. We are happy to state that he is like to do well.

Intelligence never attended to.

Nothing is perhaps a better representative of human life than the pages of a newspaper—In one department are to be discovered insurrections and revolutions abroad; in another, murders and conflagrations at home—in one part, we notice all the volatile foreign rumours; and in the same column a grave official public document—then a little lightwinged poetry, a puling sonnet addressed by a lover to his mistres's eye brow; then some specimen of party gladiatorship—some political cut and thrusts—then some short dissertation on morality—and then importunate advertisements, where all the comforts, necessaries and superfluities of life, are carefully deposited in a page by themselves, as if neither wars abroad, nor outrages at home, as if neither politics, nor poetry, or morality would dare to interfere in a matter of so much more importance, as the acquisition of money. In the midst of all this rumour and bustle, and clamor, and rage of speculation, a little article comprehending four or five lines, is devoted to the intelligence that an immortal soul has taken its flight to its Creator, and is now awaiting his sentence. Room is hardly left for the communication of such intelligence, and it is passed over by the reader as a matter too insignificant to detain his attention for a moment. How faithfully does this mirror reflect human life as it is now passing before us! If we cast our eyes from the window, we behold the scene—stores crowded with merchandize—the crier with his obstreperous bell announcing an auction—we hear the incessant roar of the drays over the pavement, as if not a moment was to be lost in acquiring money—the chariot of pleasure decorated with the smiles of female beauty rolling in the street; knots of quidnuncs at every turn or corner, anxious to hear, or to communicate, the floating rumors of the day—stately and magnificent mansions rising from the ground, and preparations making for future grandeur and magnificence—all these are confronted by the hearse, which passes along neglected, and if the wheel should happen to encounter the chariot of dissipation, it would excite no other emotion than that of impatience for the stopping of the carriage. That all this animating spectacle, is to be brought to this silent mass of dust and ashes, seems to bear the character of romance; it is mingled with our belief of giants and fairies, or some incredible tale, not worthy of a moments regard—the coffin is suffered to pass, and with the spectacle, our memory of it likewise passes away. Fed. Rep.

The right of discovery.

A gentleman praising the personal charms of a very plain woman before Foote, the latter whispered him. "And why dont you lay claim to such an accomplished beauty?" "What right have I to her?" replied the other. "Every right by the law of nations, as the first discoverer," said Foote.

* * *

In the following rapid sketch of the "head and front of Othello's offending," we are delighted with an intimacy with the ludicrous, and a facility of style that would not disgrace the author of Broad Grins—It reminds us forcibly of some of the happiest parodies of Mr. Lewis' popular tale of "Alonzo the Brave." The author of this jeu d'esprit could do a great deal more, if he was not affected with a disease too often constitutional with genius, we mean a want of industry; we should be happy to administer some kind of alterative that would convert the complaint into a cacoethes scribendi. We sincerely regret that he has not the same taste for scribbling on paper, that his name sake in Shakespeare had, for "carving on trees."

FROM THE PORT FOLIO.

OTHELLO.

"A TALE OF TENFOLD HORROR."

A General so bold, to a maid most demure,
Convers'd as he sat at her feet;
And the name of the man was Othello the Moor,
A soldier, 'tis true, but a terrible boor,
And the maid Desdemona so sweet.
And the maid listen'd long, and the maid listen'd close,
To the tales that he pour'd in her ear;
He told her, at school how he broke a boy's nose,
How he stained the master's new satin small-clothes,
And oft put him in bodily fear.
How at seven years old he a soldiering went,
Without asking leave of his dad;
How from that time he follow'd his natural bent,
And fought in the field, and got drunk in the tent,
Whenever good grog could be had.
All these stories to hear, would she closely incline,
And devour with greedisome ear;
And oft as her daddy would call for more wine,
She would bring it in haste, and come straight as a line,
Othello's tough stories to hear.
For his trouble she gave him a bushel of sighs,
And swore that she lov'd a bold knight;
He declar'd that he lov'd her more than his eyes,
So he made her dad drunk, bore her off by surprise,
And married her that very night.
At first the old fellow was mad as a horse
At finding his dear daughter gone;
But scolding he saw only made the thing worse,
So he gave up all thoughts of obtaining divorce,
Now that the two were made one.
But the bliss of mankind is imperfect at best;
And man is a creature of woe;
For the honey-moon revels had scarcely yet pass'd
And Othello had thought himself certainly blest,
When Iago he kick'd up a row.
The day that Othello was tied to his spouse,
He gave her a handkerchief pretty—
'Twas white—but was spotted as red as my nose,
Such a one as you'd buy for a dollar, I 'spose,
At any small shop in the city.
But she dropp'd it one night, coming home from the play,
For pockets had gone out of fashion;
Which so vex'd her good man, that he swore, the folks say,
That such wasting he could'nt support by his pay,
So he fell in a violent passion.
But the moment he got her at home all alone,
He had lik'd to've gone out of his head;
Some wives would have been for disputing the bone,
But she—who knew best—thought she'd let it alone,
Took a candle and march'd off to bed.
It happened just then that Iago came in
As grum as a vinegar cruet,
And plying Othello with raw Holland Gin,
He made him believe that to kill was no sin,
Provided that nobody knew it.
Alas! who shall tell now the end of the tale,
Othello he went to his bed;
In the morning his wife was found breathless and pale,
While a few paces off—on a tenpenny nail—
Hung Othello—without—any head!
And now ev'ry night just at one it is said,
Desdemona's sweet ghost does appear;
And holding aloft her dead husband's black head,
Cries "ye who don't love to be smother'd in bed
Of woolly head heroes beware!"

JOHN M'CLEAN.

Pittsburgh, June 10, 1817.

Caution to the Public,
DR. LEE'S (WINDHAM)
BILIOUS PILLS, OR FAMILY PHYSIC.

THE above named pills, are the true and original patent Lee's Pills, and are the first Pills for which a patent was ever granted in America.

The universal esteem in which these Pills have been held for many years, as a mild, safe, and efficacious Family Medicine, and the great and increasing demand for them, in most parts of the U. States and West Indies, has induced several wicked and unprincipled dealers in medicines, (particularly in Philadelphia) to make and sell Pills, which they style Lee's Windham Bilious Pills; making use of a copy of his bill of directions, &c. and offering the same for sale, as the genuine Lee's Pills, whereas the true and original Lee's Pills were never prepared in any place except in Windham, (Con.) nor by any persons except the proprietors of the patent. To guard against deceptions of this kind, the public are requested to observe, that each box of the true Lee's Pills, is enclosed in an elegant stereotype label, with these words on the sides thereof; Lee's genuine Windham Bilious Pills: and on the end of the label, the words, Samuel Lee, Patentee, &c I Thompson, agent, joint proprietor, &c. and should any be offered for sale without said label on them, the purchaser may be assured that they are counterfeit and not the genuine Lee's Pills. To those who are in the habit of using the genuine pills, the fraud is easily discovered by their effects, and those who may wish to make use of them may guard against counterfeits and imposters, and always be sure of the genuine pills, by observing that they purchase none unless they are enclosed in the label aforesaid.

The proprietors have for several years past expended large sums, in order to break down counterfeiters and dishonest dealers, but are yet convinced that there are some, who not only disregard the laws and the rights of others, but also the injuries they do to the community, by selling their own dangerous compositions, for the genuine Lee's Pills, whenever they think they can do it without being detected & brought to justice. For the purpose of putting a stop to such nefarious traffic, the proprietors have been at very great expence in procuring the stereotype label, and the public may rest assured, that no genuine pills, will be sold without the label being around each box; and as a further inducement to the public to be on their guard against the designs of those dealers in medicines, who keep such counterfeit pills in their shops. The proprietors hereby offer a reward of Three Hundred Dollars, to any person who will prove to conviction, the person or persons who shall make & sell such counterfeit pills and as proper steps have been taken to discover those persons who sell such counterfeit pills, and on whom suspicion already rests, it is hoped that their names will soon be before the public, as dealers in counterfeit medicines, and their persons before the district court of the U. States, to answer for an infringement of the patent.

The approbation of medical gentlemen and the opinion of many thousands of respectable persons who have experienced the good effect of the genuine Lee's Pills, as a mild, safe and efficacious purgative, for removing jaundice, Headach, indigestion, costiveness, cholic, autumnal fevers, and all Billious complaints, are it is presumed, a sufficient recommendation to those who may wish to make use of them in families or elsewhere.

The genuine Lee's Pills, are sold by the most of those druggists in the U. States who choose to keep good articles of medicine in preference to base ones. A deposit of the genuine pills, will always be kept at the store of Thatcher and Thompson, N. W. corner of Market and Second street; by the proprietors of the patent, where druggists and others, may always be certain of obtaining the true pills, on the same terms as of the patentee.
